Discussion Summary

The team discussed the overall goal of developing a responsive Travel Journal website within a two-day sprint. Responsibilities were assigned based on each member's availability and skill level. The team agreed to use GitHub for version control and collaboration.

The importance of using feature branches, committing regularly, and creating Pull Requests before merging into the main branch was also discussed.

Responsibilities

Team Member	Assigned Tasks
Project Manager	Create GitHub repository, manage project, develop Navbar and Contact page, review Pull Requests
Keith	Home page, Destinations page, Journal page

Decisions Made

- GitHub will be used for version control.
- Each developer will work on a separate feature branch.
- The Project Manager will review and merge all Pull Requests.
- The project will follow a shared folder structure for HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and images.
- The sprint duration will be two days.

Challenges Identified

- Limited internet connectivity may affect collaboration.
- Team members require more practice using Git and GitHub.
- Frequent communication will be necessary to avoid duplicated work.
